Event Planning

- Brainstorm for the semester in August and January
- Find your niche
 - Is there an underserved population in your community or an unmet need in your college/school?
- Give yourself ample time
- Run by others with different strengths/ leadership styles
 - Easier to appeal to wider audience when considering multiple perspectives
- Expect the unexpected – plan for unforeseen events/ pitfalls
- Communicate effectively (and often)
 - Weekly newsletter, bulletin, GroupMe, email, Outlook events
- Event checklist – pharmacist.com

Operation Reproductive Health Committee

- Recommend building an ORH committee to help you brainstorm, plan, and conduct your events
- A committee can help you with the responsibilities you have and provide you with other opinions on what events would be beneficial
- A committee can help you engage others in the organization and will bring their own network of people into the planning
- Recommend communicating with your committee on GroupMe, Slack, or another messaging platform
