Profession-Wide Awards and Honors
William E. Evans, PharmD, was selected in recognition of his leadership as a hospital administrator, cutting-edge scientist, and outstanding teacher and his commitment to research with anticancer agents and pharmacogenomics. Evans has made unmatched contributions to the profession of pharmacy and has propelled the role of the pharmacist.

Evans is chief executive officer (CEO) of St. Jude Children’s Research Hospital and holds an endowed chair at the University of Tennessee Colleges of Pharmacy and Medicine. His research is focused on the pharmacogenomics of anticancer agents in children, funded by three consecutive National Institutes of Health (NIH) MERIT Awards from the National Cancer Institute (NCI)(1987–2015). He was elected to the Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Sciences in 2002. Evans is a member of the Board of Trustees of Rhodes College and serves on the Board of Scientific Counselors for NCI. He has authored more than 300 articles and has received several awards for his research, including the 2009 Pediatric Cancer Award from the American Society of Clinical Oncology (shared with Mary Relling) and the 2009 Team Science Prize from the American Association for Cancer Research. Since Evans became CEO in 2004, St. Jude has been ranked annually in the top 10 best places to work in academia by The Scientist magazine (number one in 2006) and as the number one children’s cancer hospital by Parents Magazine (2009) and U.S. News and World Report (2010). St. Jude also was listed by Fortune magazine among the top 100 companies to work for in the United States (2011). St. Jude is the only NCI-designated comprehensive cancer center devoted solely to children.

Jeffrey N. Baldwin, PharmD, FAPhA, FASHP, was selected in recognition of his distinguished career dedicated to substance abuse assistance and education for student pharmacists and pharmacists. His work as an influential leader, innovative educator, and role model has contributed to the advancement of pharmacists’ involvement in understanding of alcoholism and drug addiction.

Baldwin is professor of pharmacy practice at the University of Nebraska Medical Center College of Pharmacy, where he has been recognized as a Teacher of the Year and received the campus Spirit of Community Service Award. He received his BS in pharmacy and PharmD degrees from the State University of New York at Buffalo and the University of Kentucky, respectively. Baldwin is nationally recognized for activities related to substance abuse education, prevention, and assistance. He chaired the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy’s (AACP’s) Substance Abuse Education and Assistance Special Interest Group for 10 years and has served as a speaker and Advisory Council member for the University of Utah School on Alcoholism and Other Drug Dependencies Pharmacy Section for a number of years. Baldwin received the APhA Academy of Pharmacy Practice & Management (APhA–APPM) Merit Award and the APhA–APPM Distinguished Achievement Award in Specialized Pharmacy Practice, largely for his dedication to pharmacy substance abuse education and assistance programs. He developed and teaches two substance abuse elective courses and has assisted many colleges in developing substance abuse surveys, policies, and coursework. Baldwin has conducted and published a number of health professional student substance abuse surveys. He is a past-president of the Nebraska Pharmacists Association and AACP. Baldwin’s other community service activities include Boy Scout leadership training and a children’s cancer camp.

The American Pharmacists Association

Hubert H. Humphrey Award

The Hubert H. Humphrey Award was established in 1978 to recognize APhA members who have made major contributions in government and/or legislative service at the local, state, or national level.

Stephen W. Schondelmeyer, BS, PharmD, MAPubAdm, PhD, FAPhA, was selected in recognition of his long-term role in influencing and shaping public policy on issues related to quality, cost, and access to medicines and pharmaceutical services, and specifically his work with the Prescription Payment Review Commission and the Pharmacy Payment Reform Advisory Committee. His efforts have helped to make drugs more affordable for patients and taxpayers, reduce health care expenditures, and decrease Medicare and Medicaid fraud, waste, and abuse. His testimony and analyses have informed Members of Congress and helped shape oversight efforts and important legislation, such as the 2010 Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act.

Schondelmeyer serves as a Professor at the University of Minnesota’s College of Pharmacy where he is Director of the PRIME Institute. Over the past four decades he has produced more than 300 research publications and he has given more than 700 invited presentations. He received a Congressional appointment to serve on the Prescription Drug Payment Review Commission and he has served on other state government commissions and task forces. He has testified before Congress, state legislatures, and government agencies more than 100 times and he is one of the most often quoted pharmacists in the print and broadcast media.

Trish Rippetoe Freeman, RPh, PhD, was selected in recognition of her legislative and grassroots advocacy work helping to ensure that Kentucky pharmacists were authorized to administer immunizations and her work with the Kentucky Medicaid Drug Management Review Advisory Board.

Freeman is a clinical associate professor in the Pharmacy Practice and Science Department at the University of Kentucky College of Pharmacy and faculty associate in the Institute for Pharmaceutical Outcomes and Policy. She was recently named the founding director of the college’s Center for the Advancement of Pharmacy Practice. Freeman has a longstanding interest in professional advocacy. She serves as faculty advisor to the Student Legislative Committee and was instrumental in helping to change the Pharmacy Practice Act in Kentucky to allow pharmacists to administer adult immunizations. Freeman is active in the Kentucky Pharmacists Association, where she currently serves on the board of directors, and the American Pharmacists Association, where she has previously served as a member of the policy committee and as a Kentucky delegate to the APhA House of Delegates. She has also advised state agencies through service on the Board of Pharmacy Advisory Council and the Medicaid Drug Management Review Advisory Board. In addition to her contributions to the profession, Freeman has served the deaf and hard-of-hearing community through her work with the Kentucky Commission on the Deaf and Hard of Hearing, having successfully lobbied the state legislature to require insurance companies to provide state-mandated health insurance coverage for hearing aids for children.
Kyle J. Hampson, was selected in recognition of his advocacy for the pharmacy profession and work to raise student awareness of legislative issues affecting pharmacy practice.

Hampson is a 2012 PharmD candidate at Duquesne University. Throughout his time in pharmacy school, he has been an active member of APhA, the Pennsylvania Pharmacists Association, and the Allegheny County Pharmacists Association. Hampson has held many leadership positions within these organizations and has served as chapter president of the Pennsylvania Pharmacists Association. He is currently the chair of the Academy of Student Pharmacists of the Pennsylvania Pharmacists Association. Hampson has played a significant role in raising awareness and gaining support for pharmacy issues among students. By organizing letter-writing campaigns, Hampson has contributed to recent legislative successes for pharmacy in Pennsylvania, including the establishment of collaborative practice and immunization abilities for pharmacists. In addition, Hampson has established student fundraisers for the political action committee of the Pennsylvania Pharmacists Association and met with legislators to personally advocate for pharmacy issues. He is currently working with other students to expand immunization abilities for pharmacists and student pharmacists in Pennsylvania. In the future, Hampson hopes to continue to advocate for the pharmacy profession and pursue interests in public health and law.

Honorary membership in the American Pharmacists Association is conferred by the APhA Board of Trustees upon individuals, either within the profession of pharmacy or outside of it, whose activities and achievements have had a significant impact on public health, the profession, and its practitioners.

CAPT S. Miles Rudd, MD, FAAFP, was selected in recognition of his dedication to the advancement of pharmacy practice and his steadfast support of the pharmacist’s expanding role through the development of credentialing and scope of practice models, collaborative practice agreements, and support of pharmacy residency programs.

Rudd is the clinical director of the Warm Springs Health & Wellness Center, a federal Indian Health Service (IHS) clinic providing comprehensive primary care services to American Indians and Alaskan Natives in Central Oregon. A native of North Carolina, he has served the Confederate Tribes of Warm Springs for the past 17 years. He also serves as chair of the IHS National Pharmacy & Therapeutics Committee, overseeing the continued development and implementation of the IHS National Core Formulary and supporting clinicians and pharmacists in the agency in providing high-quality pharmacotherapy to the patients they serve. In addition, Rudd is a full-time clinician providing a full spectrum of outpatient clinic services, inpatient adult and pediatric care (including critical care, obstetrics, and surgical assistance), and long-term care. He is assistant medical examiner for the Warm Springs Reservation and teaches medical, nurse practitioner, and physician assistant students part-time. He has served on the faculty of the Warm Springs Pharmacy Residency Program. Rudd is a past president of the Oregon Academy of Family Physicians and currently serves as Oregon delegate to the American Academy of Family Physicians Congress of Delegates.

Daniel A. Hussar, BSPharm, PhD, FAPhA, was selected in recognition of his contributions to pharmacy education, advocacy, and leadership and for his dedication to the profession of pharmacy.

Hussar is the Remington Professor of Pharmacy at the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy at the University of the Sciences in Philadelphia. He received his BS in pharmacy, MS, and PhD degrees from this college and has served on its full-time faculty since 1966, including 9 years of service as dean of faculty. He highly values the opportunity he has had to participate in the education of several generations of students and in their professional and personal development. Hussar has served as a member of APhA’s Board of Trustees and House of Delegates, as chief pharmacy editor for Pharmacy Today, and as a contributing editor for the Journal of the American Pharmacists Association (JAPhA). He has also served as president of the Drug Information Association and Pennsylvania Pharmacists Association and on the Board of Directors of World Vision and Christian Pharmacists Fellowship International. His publications and presentations have been primarily in the areas of new drugs, drug interactions, patient compliance, and issues facing the profession of pharmacy. Hussar has been honored as the recipient of APhA’s Hugo H. Schaefer Award, Distinguished Pharmacy Educator Award of AACP, Bowl of Hygeia Award, Lindback Award for Distinguished Teaching, and Rho Chi Lecture Award. In addition to his faculty responsibilities, he is the editor of the monthly newsletter The Pharmacist Activist. He and his pharmacist wife, Suzanne, have been married for 44 years and have three children, Eric, Christopher, and Timothy, and six grandchildren.

Cynthia J. Boyle, PharmD, FAPhA, was selected in recognition of her mentorship and leadership to student pharmacists, pharmacists, preceptors, and experiential education directors. She was instrumental in creating a consortium of experiential directors in the mid-Atlantic region to develop shared goals to strengthen the learning experience for numerous student pharmacists. She is an advocate for the profession and actively represents strong traits as a progressive and experienced leader.

Boyle is professor and chair of the Department of Pharmacy Practice and Administration at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore School of Pharmacy and Health Professions. She graduated from the University of Oklahoma College of Pharmacy and University of Maryland School of Pharmacy. She has served as a pharmacist in community, institutional, and consultant practice. Boyle is active in AACP and is recognized for her expertise in experiential education. She was honored with an AACP Crystal APPLE Award for contributions to learning excellence in experiential education and serves as AACP Speaker of the House. Boyle has long mentored students and colleagues toward state and national leadership opportunities. She is completing her third term of office with APhA–APPM and has endowed student scholarships with the APhA Foundation and the University of Maryland Baltimore Foundation. As a former president of Phi Lambda Sigma and the Maryland Pharmacists Association (MPhA), she received the MPhA Seidman Distinguished Achievement Award and created the MPhA Mentor Award during her term of office. Boyle was honored with the Maryland Society of Health-System Pharmacists Purdum Award for influential leadership. Experienced in legislative advocacy and leadership development, she, along with Drs. Robert Beardsley and David Holdford, published Leadership and Advocacy for Pharmacy.
Jannet M. Carmichael, PharmD, FCCP, FAPhA, BCPS, was selected in recognition of her vision of the expansion of the pharmacist’s role in health care, specifically in clinical practices in the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) Pharmacy Service. Carmichael provided leadership and encouraged the development of clinical pharmacy program management initiatives, including the coding and recording of VA medication therapy management activities to ensure accuracy and optimal prescribing practices. Her career reflects leadership in the profession and advocacy for progress in practice. Carmichael is a dynamic and creative force, challenging her staff, residents, students, and all those around her to be the very best.

Carmichael coordinates a health informatics, pharmacoeconomic, and pharmacoepidemiology program for the Veteran Integrated Service Network. Previously, she was clinical pharmacy coordinator at the VA Sierra Nevada Health Care System in Reno, Nevada, and associate professor of medicine at the University of Nevada School of Medicine. Her clinical practice includes primary care and outcomes studies. Carmichael is pharmacy residency program director for a postgraduate year two (PGY2) program in managed care systems and pharmacoeconomics. She is a graduate of the University of Iowa College of Pharmacy and the University of the Pacific College of Pharmacy PharmD program. She is a past president of the American Society of Health-System Pharmacists (ASHP), Nevada Pharmacists Association, and Nevada Pharmacy Alliance and served on the Nevada Board of Pharmacy. She is past chair of the Board of Pharmacy Specialties and the Board Certified Pharmacotherapy Specialist Pharmacotherapy Council and is an Accreditation Council for Pharmacy Education practitioner reviewer. She participates as a member of numerous professional boards and committees, including the National Quality Forum Medication Management Steering Committee and the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services Medication Measures Technical Expert Panel.
Melissa Somma McGivney, PharmD, was selected in recognition of her outstanding leadership as a preceptor and mentor and for her commitment to advancing pharmacy practice.

McGivney is an associate professor at the University of Pittsburgh School of Pharmacy and director of the Community Pharmacy Residency Program. Her focus is on the development of pharmacist patient care practices in the community. She coordinates the first year Profession of Pharmacy 1 course in which students learn to conduct patient care evaluations, and she created an experiential learning course in which students learn to establish services in a community pharmacy. In 2006, McGivney established the Community Pharmacy Residency Program, which has graduated 11 residents to date who have helped to foster community-based research at the school. McGivney has worked with faculty from across Pennsylvania to provide medication therapy management (MTM) training for pharmacists interested in initiating patient care practices in their communities. Nationally, McGivney has provided MTM training and has been active in advocating for payment for pharmacist services through her work with the Pharmacist Services Technical Advisory Coalition. McGivney is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh School of Pharmacy where she completed a residency in ambulatory care. She has previously served on the faculty of Wilkes University Nesbitt School of Pharmacy and the University of Pittsburgh Medical Center (UPMC) St. Margaret Family Practice Program.

Established in 1982, the H.A.B. Dunning Award recognizes an exemplary contribution to APhA and the practice of pharmacy by a pharmaceutical manufacturer, provider of support products or services, or other entities such as wholesalers, chain corporations, etc. The award is named for Henry Armitt Brown Dunning (1877–1962), former chairman of the board of Hynson, Westcott and Dunning of Baltimore Maryland, who as a longstanding APhA leader was instrumental in the funding and building of the APhA headquarters building in Washington, DC.

Novartis Vaccines and Diagnostics, Inc., in recognition of the company’s continued commitment to enhancing the role of the pharmacist as a patient care practitioner and for its support of efforts focused on improving the public health of our nation. The company has supported many important APhA educational and professional development programs over recent years. It has been dedicated to supporting the role of the pharmacist as an immunizer and gathering support in the public domain. It also has supported the training of pharmacists nationwide and provided support to assist in the training of additional National Faculty for the APhA Pharmacy-Based Immunization Certificate Training Program. The company has been a key advocate of initiatives to educate pharmacists about new vaccine technologies, operational issues, and ways in which to expand immunization practices. In 2009, Novartis Vaccines and Diagnostics and APhA partnered to create the APhA Immunization Champion Awards, an annual program showcasing the individuals and practices that make a difference in public health and pharmacy-based immunization practice. In 2011, the program was expanded to recognize nonpharmacist team members who help contribute to the success and public health impact of pharmacy-based immunizations.

In fall 2011, Novartis Vaccines and Diagnostics helped elevate the role of the immunizing pharmacist in consumer media by supporting a media tour that highlighted to a national consumer audience the role and special training of the immunizing pharmacist and the convenience of receiving vaccines from pharmacists. The tour consisted of a television, radio, and print media campaign featuring one of APhA’s expert Media Advisors.

The American Pharmacists Association

Distinguished New Practitioner Award

The Distinguished New Practitioner Award was established in 2010 to recognize an individual new practitioner who has demonstrated distinctive achievements in mentorship, service, and commitment to the profession of pharmacy.

David R. Bright, PharmD, BCACP, was selected in recognition of the many accomplishments he has achieved early in his career, especially in the areas of disease state management and wellness, MTM, and student mentorship.

Bright is an assistant professor of pharmacy practice at Ohio Northern University (ONU) in Ada, OH. He earned his BS in pharmaceutical sciences and doctor of pharmacy degree from the University of Toledo and completed a community pharmacy residency with the University of Toledo and Kroger Pharmacy. Following his residency, Bright began his position at ONU and helped to establish the ONU HealthWise program, a pharmacist-directed multidisciplinary health and wellness program for employees of ONU, where he has served in both clinician and director roles. Preliminary results of the implementation of the ONU HealthWise program resulted in an APhA–APPM Presentation Merit Award. Bright teaches a variety of therapeutics topics and has also helped to implement a new MTM elective course at ONU. He is the founding director of a new community pharmacy residency program with Kroger Pharmacy and is a co-advisor of the APhA–ASP chapter at ONU. Currently, he is serving as the APhA representative to the Pharmacy Technician Certification Board’s Certification Council and as a member of the Ohio Pharmacist Association’s Disease State Management Task Force.

PAST RECIPIENTS

2011  Catherine H. Kuhn
The American Pharmacists Association

Generation Rx Award of Excellence

Endowed by the Cardinal Health Foundation

The Generation Rx Award of Excellence was established in 2011 to recognize a pharmacist who has demonstrated a commitment to the mission of substance abuse education.

Megan E. Thompson, PharmD, was selected in recognition of her commitment to educating communities in the Albuquerque area and in the state of New Mexico about the dangers of drug abuse, especially prescription misuse and abuse. Since 2007, she has created and presented innovative drug abuse prevention programs that reach students in all grade levels of school. She has collaborated with community organizations and trained community leaders in an effort to reach even more students. She has been a valuable source of information for pharmacists in New Mexico.

Thompson is the director of the Advanced Professional Pharmacy Experience (APPE) Program at the University of New Mexico College of Pharmacy. She has worked at the College of Pharmacy since December 2003, after practicing in a community pharmacy setting for 3 years. She served as the director of student services for 7 years and as interim associate dean for professional education until she was appointed to her new position in 2011. In addition to her administrative duties, Thompson received a grant from the Cardinal Health Foundation to develop materials for and educate the New Mexico community on preventing the misuse and abuse of prescription medication. Generation Rx is a grant program designed to increase awareness about the issue of prescription drug misuse, abuse, and overdose and to encourage action in communities across the country. Thompson also served as chair of the College of Pharmacy Admissions Committee for 3 years, is the course coordinator for the Self-Care Therapeutics course for first- and second-year pharmacy students, and teaches two pharmacy elective courses.
Fellows of the American Pharmacists Association

A Fellow of the American Pharmacists Association is a member of either the APhA Academy of Pharmacy Practice and Management (APhA–APPM) or the APhA Academy of Pharmaceutical Research and Science (APhA–APRS), with a minimum of 10 years of professional experience and achievements in professional practice. An APhA Fellow also has rendered outstanding service to the profession through activities in APhA and other organizations. Examples of service to organizations may include having held an elected or appointed office; service on a committee, expert panel, or review board; or other relevant activities. The selection of members as APhA Fellows is made by their respective Academy.

Bethany J. Boyd, RPh, PhD, is a medical outcomes specialist for Pfizer, Inc., in Dallas/Fort Worth and west Texas. She has extensive experience in providing medical support for customers, including health plans, employers, VA/Department of Defense (DoD) institutions, medical groups, and integrated delivery systems. Her current activities include practice transformation (patient-centered medical home), women's health, value-based benefit design, and employer and community-based health and wellness activities. Boyd is active in APhA, having served as Speaker of the House of Delegates, member of the Board of Trustees, and member of the Policy and House Rules Review Committees. She has served the Texas Pharmacy Association as vice president, secretary, and chair of the House of Delegates. She currently serves on the University of Texas College of Pharmacy Alumni Association Board, on which she also served as president, and is president-elect of the Dallas Area Pharmacy Association. She serves on the School Health Advisory Committee for the Allen Independent School District as well as the Alliance for a Healthier Allen. Boyd is a graduate of the University of Texas at Austin with BS, MS, and PhD degrees, focusing on outcomes research and pharmacoeconomics.

Charles J. Broussard, BSPharm, MEd, received a BSPharm from the University of Tennessee College of Pharmacy in Memphis and an MEd in agency and community counseling from Xavier University in Cincinnati, with major studies in alcoholism and chemical dependency counseling from Seattle University. He has been a staff pharmacist at Mercy Hospital, Fairfield, OH, since August 1987. Since June 2003, he has served as a pharmacy section leader at the University of Utah School on Alcoholism and Other Drug Dependencies and is the editor of a recovery website for pharmacists and student pharmacists, www.USAPRN.org. Broussard has received several awards, including the Beal Award from the Ohio Pharmacists Association (2005), which honors a pharmacist who has made continued contributions to the advancement of the pharmacy profession; the APhA–APPM Merit Award (2008); the Linwood F. Tice Friend of the APhA–ASP Award (2009); and the University of Utah School of Medicine Ewart A. Swinyard Award (2011), which recognizes outstanding service in the field of substance abuse education, treatment, and prevention. He is a member of the Ohio Society of Health-System Pharmacists and the Ohio Pharmacists Association.

Ed Cohen, PharmD, received his BS in pharmacy from the University of Illinois at Chicago (UIC) and PharmD from Midwestern University Chicago College of Pharmacy (MWU). After owning an independent pharmacy for many years, he transitioned into corporate pharmacy practice as director of pharmacy for Dominick’s Finer Foods, a division of Safeway, where he implemented many patient care programs and initiatives. Today, he serves as the senior manager of corporate innovations for Walgreens. His current area of responsibility includes developing and implementing pharmacist-delivered immunization services. Cohen holds adjunct faculty positions at UIC and MWU. He has also served on the college advisory committees for MWU and as chair of the Administrative Practice Section of APhA–APPM. Cohen is on the Board of Directors of the University of Illinois Alumni Association and is a founding member of the Illinois Affiliate of Academy of Managed Care Pharmacy. He has been recognized nationally for his role in bringing pharmaceutical care to the forefront of community pharmacy.
Joseph B. Lawrence, PharmD, MBA, BCPS, Commander, United States Navy, Medical Service Corps, is the director of the DoD Pharmacoeconomic Center, with oversight of pharmacy services for 9.7 million beneficiaries and more than $7.5 billion in annual pharmacy expenditures. He is also the contracting officer’s representative for DoD’s pharmacy benefit contract. Lawrence entered the Navy in 1993 under the Health Services Collegiate Program and has been stationed in Charleston, SC; Guam; Patuxent River, MD; Corpus Christi, TX; Bethesda, MD; and at the DoD Pharmacoeconomic Center in San Antonio. He has been an active member of APhA since 1993 and has contributed publications and presentations, performed reviews for contributed research, and served on the Joint Forces Pharmacy Seminar Planning Committees and in the APhA House of Delegates. He is also a member of the Academy of Managed Care Pharmacy (AMCP) and actively volunteers with Boy Scouts of America as an assistant scout master. He holds numerous awards and accolades from the U.S. Navy, a bachelor’s of science degree from Southwestern Oklahoma State University, a doctor of pharmacy degree from the University of Florida, and board certification in pharmacotherapy from the Board of Pharmacy Specialties.

Cherokee Layson-Wolf, PharmD, CGP, BCACP, is an associate professor in the Department of Pharmacy Practice and Science at the University of Maryland School of Pharmacy. She is the director of practice labs and residency director for the University of Maryland PGY1 Community Pharmacy Residency Program. Layson-Wolf actively teaches in therapeutics and self-care courses and is a course manager for a community pharmacy–based, abilities-based course, APPE community pharmacy rotations, and a teaching elective experience. She has served as faculty co-advisor for the APhA–ASP chapter at the University of Maryland for 8 years. She is a certified immunizing pharmacist and actively teaches pharmacists as faculty of the APhA Pharmacy-Based Immunization Delivery certificate course, and she was successful in incorporating immunization certification as a part of the required curriculum. She is currently serving as a member of the Maryland Laboratory Advisory Committee. Layson-Wolf has served on the APhA Books and Electronic Products Advisory Board and now serves on the APhA Community Pharmacy Residency Advisory Panel. Layson-Wolf’s other achievements include recognition as a Distinguished Young Pharmacist from both the Lambda Kappa Sigma pharmacy fraternity and the Maryland Pharmacists Association, and she is a recipient of the Innovative Pharmacy Practice Award from the Maryland Pharmacists Association.

Sandra Leal, PharmD, CDE, is the director of clinical pharmacy at El Rio Health Center. Her work has focused on increasing access and improving health outcomes and patient safety by integrating pharmacy services in underserved communities. She currently serves as faculty co-chair for the Health Resources and Services Administration Patient Safety and Clinical Pharmacy Collaborative, a national performance improvement initiative focused on medication use in safety net organizations. Leal is the first pharmacist in Arizona to receive prescriptive authority. She is past president of the Association of Clinicians for the Underserved and serves on the board of the National Center for Farmworker Health. She has received the ASHP Best Practices Award in Health-Systems Pharmacy, the National Association of Community Health Centers Innovative Research in Primary Care Award, and the Pinnacle Award from the APhA Foundation and was recognized as Pharmacist of the Year in Arizona. Some of her current work has been published in Diabetes Care, the Journal of Health Care for the Poor and Underserved, Insulin Journal, and Advances in Chronic Kidney Disease. She is currently enrolled at the University of Massachusetts, obtaining her MPH degree to continue to pursue her efforts to improve public health in underserved populations.

Bella H. Mehta, PharmD, received her BS  and doctor of pharmacy degrees from Ohio State University (OSU). She also completed an ambulatory/community care residency at the OSU College of Pharmacy where she is currently a faculty member in the Division of Pharmacy Practice and Administration, and director of the Clinical Partners Program. Clinical Partners’ mission is to help patients make the best use of medications and to educate current and future pharmacists through innovative practice, teaching, and scholarship. Clinical Partners has developed and implemented pharmacy services as part of a prototype patient-centered medical home. Mehta’s areas of focus include herbs and dietary supplements and the establishment of reimbursable models of pharmacist-managed direct patient care services. She has been the primary preceptor for seven residents. Mehta is a past recipient of the ASHP Foundation Best Practices in Health Systems Pharmacy Award, two APhA–APPM Presentation Merit Awards, and OSU’s Josephine S. Failer Award. She has been actively involved in pharmacy and has served as a Member-at-large for the APhA–APPM Clinical/Pharmacotherapeutic Section, as a member of the JAPhA Editorial Advisory Board, and as a faculty presenter for APhA certificate training programs, including pharmacy-based immunization delivery and MTM.

Michael Mosley, RPh, BCNP, is one of the original operations directors at PETNET Solutions, a company that pioneered the manufacture and distribution of short-lived radiopharmaceuticals used in positron emission tomography (PET). His career began in community pharmacy, where he provided direct patient care for several years before training to practice nuclear pharmacy.

Mosley went on to earn board certification in nuclear pharmacy and later specialized as a PET radiopharmacist. His current work responsibility includes oversight of production operations, training, and quality program compliance. Mosley is current Chair of the APhA–APPM Nuclear Pharmacy Practice Section, a Delegate in APhA’s House of Delegates, a director of the National Association of Nuclear Pharmacies, a member of the University of New Mexico Editorial Board for Nuclear Pharmacy Continuing Education, and a past member of the Board of Pharmacy Specialties (BPS) Specialty Council on Nuclear Pharmacy. Mosley received a BS in pharmacy from Florida A&M University in Tallahassee and is a member of the Florida Pharmacists Association and the Society of Nuclear Medicine.
Richard A. Nickel, RPh, MS, is director of regulatory affairs for Triad Isotopes, Inc., a nationwide nuclear pharmacy company, and was director of pharmacy quality during his more than 26 years at Covidien. He was 2007–2008 Chair of the APhA–APPm Nuclear Pharmacy Practice Section and a member of the United States Pharmacopeial Ad Hoc Advisory Panel for General Chapter 797 from 2005 to 2010 and continues to be active within the APhA-APPm Section on Nuclear Pharmacy Practice, currently serving as chair of the Professional Affairs Committee. Nickel is a board member of the National Association of Nuclear Pharmacies and is on the Committee on Pharmacopeia of the Society of Nuclear Medicine. He is a frequent invited speaker at nuclear pharmacy and nuclear medicine continuing education events on the topics of sterile compounding of radiopharmaceuticals and patient safety in radiopharmaceutical dispensing. Nickel received his BS in pharmacy from Duquesne University with a specialization in radiopharmacy and an MS in pharmaceutics/radiopharmacy from the University of Pittsburgh. He completed a nuclear pharmacy residency at UPMC, opened the first commercial PET nuclear pharmacy in 1990, and is active in promotion of rational pharmacy regulations. Nickel is active in several nonprofit charitable organizations and serves as an elected officer of his local Knights of Columbus Council.

Jenny A. Van Amburgh, PharmD, BCACP, CDE, is an associate clinical professor and assistant dean for academic affairs at the Northeastern University School of Pharmacy. She serves as the director of clinical pharmacy services and the residency program, an ASHP PGY1 ambulatory care/teaching–focused residency at Harbor Health Services, Inc. (HHSI). Her teaching focuses on self-care, medication adherence, MTM, disease prevention, and health promotion. Van Amburgh also holds an administrative position at HHSI, a federally funded, urban, community health center. Her research interests include MTM, outcomes of patient-centered care in community health centers, and the scholarship of teaching. She has published articles in peer-reviewed journals, including the American Journal of Pharmacy Education, JPhA, and Pharmacotherapy. She has authored chapters in pharmacy education textbooks. Complementing her practice and research interests is her involvement in professional associations. Van Amburgh is actively involved in APhA, ASHP, and AACP through nominated committee work. She has received several awards, including the AACP 2007 Crystal APPLE Award, 2007 Massachusetts Pharmacists Association Distinguished Young Pharmacist Award, 2010 AACP Innovation in Teaching Award, and 2011 AACP Excellence in Assessment Award.

Selected as Fellows by APhA–APRS

Rajender R. Aparasu, MPharm, PhD, is professor and division head of pharmacy administration at the University of Houston College of Pharmacy. He received his PhD from the University of Louisiana at Monroe and bachelor’s and master’s degrees in pharmacy in India. Aparasu has received several federal and nonfederal grants to address a variety of issues in pharmaceutical practice and policy, and he has served on federal patient safety and APhA MTM task forces. He sits on the editorial boards of several pharmacy and health care journals and has been recognized as an exceptional peer reviewer.
Aparasu has published more than 50 peer-reviewed papers and made 100 presentations at national and international meetings. He serves as an associate editor of BMC Geriatrics and recently edited the book Research Methods for Pharmaceutical Practice and Policy. He was instrumental in the growth of the pharmacy administration graduate program at the University of Houston to train the next generation of pharmacy leaders, and he led the creation of one of the largest MS residency programs in the country in collaboration with six Texas medical center institutions. He has served on several APhA committees and is an active member of the APhA–APRS Economic, Social, and Administrative Sciences Section.

Lawrence “LB” Brown, PharmD, PhD,

is associate professor and chair of the Health Outcomes and Policy Research Division, vice-chair of the Department of Pharmaceutical Sciences, director of graduate studies in health outcomes and policy research, and director of the Center for Medication Therapy Management at the University of Tennessee College of Pharmacy. He completed his doctor of pharmacy degree at the University of the Pacific and his PhD in social and administrative pharmacy at the University of Minnesota. He began his pharmacy career as a U.S. Air Force pharmacy technician from 1985 to 1991. His main research interests are economic and clinical outcomes of pharmacist-provided MTM services and consumer perception of pharmacists’ roles within the health care system. Brown is passionate about MTM. He has given more than 20 invited presentations on MTM in various countries in Europe and Asia and more than 50 presentations in the United States. Also, for the past 8 years, he has assisted community pharmacists in Hungary, offered MTM, and was recently awarded the Medallion of the Association by the Hungarian Private Pharmacists Association. He is former Speaker of the House for both APhA–ASP and APhA and currently serves on the APhA Board of Trustees.

William E. Fassett, PhD,

is professor of pharmacy law and ethics in the Department of Pharmacotherapy, Washington State University (WSU), Spokane, WA. He joined WSU in 1999 as dean and served for 6 years before returning to full-time faculty work. Fassett was professor and chair of pharmacy practice at Drake University in Des Moines, IA, from 1994 to 1999 and was formerly associate professor of pharmacy at the University of Washington. His principal teaching activity is in pharmacy law and ethics and in quality assurance and patient safety. Fassett also holds an appointment as adjunct professor at the University of Washington School of Pharmacy. He is President-elect of APhA–APRS and volunteers as executive vice president of the Spokane Pharmacy Association. Other memberships include the American Society for Pharmacy Law, American Society of Consultant Pharmacists, ASHP, Phi Delta Kappa, Rho Chi Society, and Kappa Psi Pharmaceutical Fraternity. Fassett is editor of the American Society for Pharmacy Law’s two official publications: Rx Ipsa Loquitur and Pharma-Law e-News. He is chair of the editorial panel on law, medicine, and ethics of the Annals of Pharmacotherapy and serves on the editorial boards of JAPhA and American Health & Drug Benefits.
Donald J. Levine, DPh, is recently retired after 40 years at Merck Consumer Care (Schering-Plough Health Care Products), the over-the-counter division of Merck, Inc. Following pharmacy school, he began his career in product development and has worked in most areas of research and development (R&D), including packaging sciences, process development, and clinical research. He served as the director of product safety and consumer relations and most recently as the global lead for clinical supply. During his years in R&D, he received numerous acknowledgements for his contributions and leadership at Merck. Levine has served as Member-at-large and Chair of the APhA–APRS Section on Basic Pharmaceutical Sciences. He has served on the Executive Council of APhA–APRS, on several APhA–APRS standing committees and has been a delegate at the annual APhA meetings and a poster reviewer and judge for the past 8 years. He has continued his active participation in APhA by volunteering for committees, including the APhA–APRS and APhA–APPM Counterfeit Task Force. Levine is a graduate of the University of Tennessee College of Pharmacy in Memphis and is a member of the Memphis Area Pharmacists Society. He is a life-time member of his synagogue’s board of trustees.

Michael J. Miller, RPh, DrPH, is a pharmacist and associate professor at the University of Oklahoma College of Pharmacy. He collaborates extensively with professional pharmacy and graduate students, residents, and faculty across a variety of health science disciplines. The majority of Miller’s efforts involve raising awareness about health literacy. His visionary work highlights the role of health literacy in optimizing medication use. His research collaborators have included the Iowa Health System, Polk County Iowa Senior Services, the ASHP Foundation, and the University of Alabama–Birmingham Deep South Musculoskeletal Center for Education and Research on Therapeutics. His research is widely published in the peer-reviewed literature. Miller has served as an author for contributed and invited presentations, a reviewer for annual meeting abstracts, a poster judge, and a facilitator for a research roundtable session at the APhA Meeting. He is a reviewer for numerous scholarly journals including JPhA. Miller’s expertise and service is widely recognized throughout the profession. He has served as Chair of the ASHP Foundation Research Advisory Panel, a grant reviewer, and an invited speaker at the ASHP Midyear Clinical Meeting, AACP Institute, and multiple educational institutions.

David P. Nau, RPh, PhD, is senior director for research and performance measurement for the Pharmacy Quality Alliance (PQA). Before joining PQA, he held tenured faculty appointments at the University of Michigan and University of Kentucky and served as manager of research strategies for Humana Pharmacy Solutions. Nau received his BS in pharmacy from Ohio Northern University and an MS in pharmacy administration from the University of Toledo. He completed two residencies and worked in community pharmacy and hospital management before receiving a PhD from the University of Florida. Nau’s work has focused on the improvement of medication use within the health care system, and he is one of the few pharmacists to hold the designation of Certified Professional in Healthcare Quality. Nau has authored more than 50 peer-reviewed articles and is co-editor of the book Quality & Safety in Pharmacy Practice. He has been recognized by several organizations for his leadership in the field of quality improvement for pharmacy services.

Practitioner Awards and Honors, administered by the APhA Academy of Pharmacy Practice and Management
The American Pharmacists Association

Daniel B. Smith
Practice Excellence Award

Endowed by Bristol-Myers Squibb Company

The Daniel B. Smith Award, established in 1964 to honor the first president of the American Pharmacists Association, recognized outstanding performance and achievements of a community practitioner who had distinguished himself or herself and the profession of pharmacy in the recipient’s community and professional practice setting. The award was merged with the APhA Practice Excellence Award in 1994 to recognize outstanding performance and achievements of a practitioner in any practice setting.

Steven T. Simenson, BSPharm, FAPhA, FACA, was selected in recognition of his dedication to the implementation of pharmaceutical care and the development of a sustainable and successful business model within community pharmacy. His commitment to excellence, dedication to his patients, and strong belief in the importance of mentoring and providing high-quality practice experiences for student pharmacists, residents, and young pharmacists have made him an outstanding leader within the profession.

Simenson is an active community pharmacist, managing partner, and president of six community pharmacies. His innovative pharmacy practice includes project IMPACT, practice-based research, MTM, collaborative practice, employer health and wellness services, and compounding. He has been successful in developing and implementing business models that include pharmacists for medical home practice, contracting directly with primary clinics for a broad array of pharmacist services including medication management. Simenson has been instrumental in obtaining access to and documentation in electronic medical records and comprehensive collaborative practice agreements that enable best practice pharmacist-delivered care. His practice also includes compounding orphan drug/compassionate use medications under U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) investigational new drug protocols. Simenson is an adjunct faculty member at the Colleges of Pharmacy at the University of Minnesota, University of Iowa, and Creighton University, where he precepts community pharmacy residents and APPE and introductory pharmacy practice experience (IPPE) student pharmacists. He is past president of the Minnesota Pharmacists Association, Minnesota Pharmacists Foundation, MnCare Pharmacists, and Partners in Pharmacy Cooperative and secretary-treasurer of the Pharmacy Network of Minnesota. He is on the board of directors of Pharmacist Mutual Insurance and has been recognized with the Weaver Medal, Community Pharmacy Preceptor of the Year Award, Bowl of Hygeia Award, and 2011 APhA–APPM Distinguished Achievement Award in Community and Ambulatory Practice.

Dennis Bryan, RPh, MBA, FAPhA, was selected in recognition of his numerous contributions to the profession of pharmacy, specifically his efforts to expand pharmaceutical care models with a patient-centered focus and to gain recognition for pharmacist-provided services.

Bryan is currently a private consultant focusing on the advancement of MTM programs through the recognition of different patient learning types and proper marketing techniques. He founded Iowa Pharmacy in 1977, a community practice in Chicago that provided clinical patient and collaborative services, chemotherapy preparation, and development and maintenance of emergency carts for Neomedica dialysis centers. He served as director of a hospitalwide productivity management program and established an IV admixture program. He has held several elected APhA–APPM positions, including two-time Chair of the APhA–APPM Administrative Practice Section and delegate for the APhA House of Delegates. In 2000, he was named an APhA Fellow. Bryan is a member and past president of the Illinois Pharmacists Association where he was instrumental in developing online continuing professional education programs, establishing electronic voting, and assisting in state legislation recognizing pharmacists for MTM activities and standards for compounded sterile parenteral products. Bryan is a member of the North Suburban Pharmacists Association and secretary of the Chicago Asthma Consortium. He received his BS in pharmacy from the University of Illinois in 1974 and his MBA from Keller School of Management in 1986. He is past president of both the Illinois Pharmacy Foundation and the Alumni Board of the University of Illinois at Chicago College Of Pharmacy (UICCOP). He is a recipient of the UICCOP Loyalty Award and the Jesse Stewart Service Award.

Valerie Prince, PharmD, BCPS, FAPhA, was selected in recognition of her significant contributions to the advancement of clinical services and to the area of substance abuse and professional recovery. She has been a strong and passionate advocate for protecting the public while supporting pharmacists in their recovery and has served as a mentor to numerous student pharmacists and pharmacists.

Prince is an associate professor of pharmacy practice at Samford University’s McWhorter School of Pharmacy. Her career includes initiation or expansion of clinical services in multiple acute care and ambulatory practice sites. She currently serves as a faculty member of the St. Vincent’s East Family Medicine Residency Program. In that role, she lectures and precepts medical residents and students and student pharmacists and serves as the first pharmacist member of the acute care house team. She teaches multiple clinical topics and has published and presented in a variety of therapeutic areas. She served 19 consecutive years in national elected or appointed positions with APhA, including terms as Speaker of the APhA House of Delegates, Speaker of the APhA–ASP House of Delegates, and President of the APhA Academy of Pharmacy Practice and Management. She received her doctor of pharmacy degree from Mercer University and completed a residency at the Regional Medical Center at Memphis. She serves as leader of two Girl Scout troops and volunteers in children’s ministries at her church. She has been married for 27 years to Chip Prince, and they have two beautiful, beloved, and high-maintenance daughters, Carlee (11) and MattiLynn (7).
The American Pharmacists Association

Academy of Pharmacy Practice and Management Distinguished Achievement Award in Community and Ambulatory Practice

This award recognizes the achievements of an individual who has made a significant contribution or sustained contributions to the provision of pharmaceutical care within community and ambulatory practice.

Allen Nichol, PharmD, was selected in recognition of his impact on pharmacy practice, specifically his efforts to raise awareness of the benefits and value of pharmacist-provided clinical services and to build a regulatory framework that supports community pharmacists and their ability to deliver MTM services.

Nichol is chief operating officer and vice president of clinical operations at CeutiCare, a health information technology MTM company that he co-founded in 2007. The company provides smart algorithmic processing software that guides pharmacists when making medication therapy modification suggestions to collaborating physicians. Nichol has been involved in family medicine practice sites, utilizing the medical home model, for more than 13 years. He has performed more than 25,000 advanced MTM/DSM collaborative visits with physicians both live and via Skype. Nichol currently serves as an APhA–APPM Executive Committee Member-at-large and spent 2 years on the APhA–APPM MTM Task Force. He is a past president of the Florida Pharmacy Association (FPA) and was the original faculty member of what was Southeastern University College of Pharmacy, now Nova Southeastern University College of Pharmacy (NSU). He has received numerous awards at state levels in both Florida and Ohio. Nichol received his BS degree from Ohio Northern University and his PharmD from NSU. He is a member of the Ohio Pharmacists Association, FPA, American Diabetes Association, and National Lipid Association.

Stephen F. Eckel, PharmD, MHA, BCPS, FAPhA, FASHP, was selected in recognition of his significant contributions to advance hospital pharmacy practice at the local, national, and international level. His dedication to the expansion of clinical opportunities for student pharmacists, a new experiential model for clinical education, and an expansion of patient care services resulted in the Partnership in Patient Care initiative, which unified pharmacy-based programs on the University of North Carolina (UNC) campus.

Eckel received his BS degree in pharmacy and a doctor of pharmacy degree at UNC, where he also completed a master’s degree in health care administration. Following completion of a pharmacy practice residency at Duke University Medical Center, he began as a clinical pharmacist at the UNC Hospitals where he is currently assistant director of pharmacy and residency program director. In addition, he is director of graduate studies for the Division of Pharmacy Practice and Experiential Education at the UNC Eshelman School of Pharmacy and leads the 2-year masters’ of science program in hospital pharmacy administration. Eckel is also board certified as a pharmacotherapy specialist. He has been very active in the North Carolina Association of Pharmacists, APhA, and ASHP. He is the elected chair of the Acute Care Practice Forum and a board member of the North Carolina Association of Pharmacists. He has served many years in the ASHP and APhA House of Delegates. Eckel has also been recognized as a Fellow of ASHP and APhA.

Vivian S. Loveless, PharmD, BCNP, FAPhA, was selected in recognition of her significant and sustained contributions to the field of nuclear pharmacy and nuclear medicine. She has distinguished herself as a premier practitioner, researcher, and educator, having mentored numerous student pharmacists throughout her career. Her excitement and passion for the profession have inspired colleagues and student pharmacists to become leaders within the nuclear pharmacy community.

Loveless is an associate professor in pharmaceutical sciences at the University of Tennessee College of Pharmacy (UTCOP). Her career in nuclear pharmacy began with a residency in nuclear pharmacy at UTCOP. After 14 years as nuclear pharmacist in charge at Baptist Memorial Hospital in Memphis, she left Baptist to enter centralized commercial nuclear pharmacy operations. In this role, she continued to be active in pharmaceutical care as well as education. In 2005, she became a full-time faculty member at UTCOP, where she is in charge of the training and education of pharmacy students interested in authorized nuclear pharmacists. She has been active in APhA–APPM by serving as an elected officer and a member of several committees. Loveless served two terms on the BPS Specialty Council on Nuclear Pharmacy, two terms on the board of directors of the Nuclear Medicine Technology Certification Board, and one term as the APhA representative member on the Pharmacy Technician Certification Board. She is also a past member of the USP Ad Hoc Advisory Panel for Radiopharmaceuticals as Compounded Sterile Preparations in General Chapter <797>. She has been a board certified nuclear pharmacist since 1982.

Mike Pavlovich, PharmD, was selected in recognition of his significant contributions to specialized pharmacy practice, specifically in the areas of pharmaceutical compounding and pharmacist involvement in sports medicine. He has been an excellent role model and preceptor whose passion for delivering pharmaceutical solutions to patients who cannot take medications via the traditional routes of delivery has influenced countless student pharmacists and colleagues.

Pavlovich is the co-owner of Westcliff Compounding Pharmacy in Newport Beach, CA. He has been an APhA Trustee since 2008 and serves on APhA’s Finance and Government Affairs Committees. He is a 1989 graduate of the University of the Pacific School of Pharmacy. He is associate clinical professor at the Western University of Health Sciences and adjunct faculty at several universities. He is only the second pharmacist named as the United States Olympic Committee’s team pharmacist, serving at the XXIX Olympiad in Beijing. He has addressed professional health care organizations nationwide on a variety of pharmacy-related topics and has advised clients from Major League Baseball, the National Basketball Association, National Football League, National Hockey League, and National Collegiate Athletic Association for more than 10 years. He represented APhA on a joint task force with the National Athletic Trainers’ Association (NATA) charged with creating guidelines for managing medication in the athletic training facility and contributed to NATA’s “Position Statement: Anabolic-Androgenic Steroids.” He has practiced in long-term care, hospice, mail-service, compounding, and community pharmacies. Pavlovich is past president of the California Pharmacists Association (CPhA). He chaired the APhA Policy Committee and the House of Delegates Nominating Committee and has served on numerous committees of APhA and CPhA. CPhA recognized Pavlovich as Student of the Year and Distinguished Young Pharmacist.

American Pharmacists Association

Scientific Awards and Honors, administered by the APhA Academy of Pharmaceutical Research and Science
The American Pharmacists Association

Research Achievement Award in the Pharmaceutical Sciences

This award, administered by the APhA Academy of Pharmaceutical Research and Science (APhA–APRS), encourages and recognizes outstanding meritorious achievement in any of the pharmaceutical sciences. Contributions to be recognized are in the areas of basic pharmaceutical, clinical, and economic, social, and administrative sciences, which develop knowledge and integrate the process of science into the profession of pharmacy. The award rotates each year among the APhA–APRS Sections. In 2012, the award recognizes contributions in the area of economic, social, and administrative sciences.

Carole L. Kimberlin, PhD, was selected for her research contributions in the area of pharmacist-patient communication, within which she is considered a pioneer in the field. Her research and the dissemination of her work have directly shaped the role of today’s pharmacists in counseling and in patient education. She has published extensively, including serving as co-author of the widely used textbook Communication Skills in Pharmacy Practice, currently in its sixth edition.

Kimberlin is a professor in the Department of Pharmaceutical Outcomes and Policy at the University of Florida. She started her career on faculty at the University of Nebraska. Since coming to the University of Florida, she has taught a course for student pharmacists on professional communications in pharmacy practice and teaches courses in the PhD and MS programs on measurement in pharmacy research and patient responsibility in health care. Her research has focused on patient decisions on medication use and the effects of pharmacist-patient communication on patient understanding of and adherence to therapy. Kimberlin was principal investigator (PI) on an FDA-funded project to evaluate consumer medication information leaflets dispensed with prescriptions in community pharmacies. She also was PI on an NCI project that interviewed cancer patients, family caregivers, pharmacists, physicians, and nurses on barriers to effective communication between providers and patients regarding pain management. Kimberlin is an APhA Fellow and is currently on an NIH Special Emphasis Panel on Health Literacy.

Ebert Prize

Endowed by the Ebert Legacy

The Ebert Prize, administered by the APhA Academy of Pharmaceutical Research and Science (APhA–APRS), was established in 1873. It recognizes the author(s) of the best report of original investigation of a medicinal substance published in the Journal of Pharmaceutical Sciences in the past year. Both the Editorial Advisory Board of the Journal and the APhA–APRS Awards Committee participate in the selection process.

Jared Baird, PhD, was selected in recognition of his paper, “A Classification System to Assess the Crystallization Tendency of Organic Molecules from Undercooled Melts,” published in the September 2010 issue of the Journal of Pharmaceutical Sciences. The coauthors are Bernard Van Eerdenbrugh, PhD, and Lynne S. Taylor, PhD.

Baird currently is a scientist in the Product Formulation Development Department at Allergan, Inc., a multispecialty health care company focused on producing innovative pharmaceuticals, biologics, medical devices, and over-the-counter consumer products. Baird received dual BS degrees in agricultural and biological engineering and pharmaceutical sciences from Purdue University in 2006 and received a PhD in pharmaceutics from the Department of Industrial and Physical Pharmacy at Purdue University in 2011 under the guidance of Dr. Lynne Taylor. Baird’s PhD dissertation on understanding the crystallization tendency of organic molecules from the undercooled melt and glassy state focused on the area of amorphous pharmaceuticals to gain a better understanding of their inherent instability in relation to solid dispersion products. Baird’s dissertation research was recognized at both the university and national levels. He received the Jenkins-Knevel Award for outstanding graduate research from Purdue University in 2010 and the 2010 American Association of Pharmaceutical Scientists (AAPS) Graduate Student Award in the area of formulation design and development. He presented his research findings at the 2010 AAPS annual meeting in New Orleans. Baird is an AAPS member and has served as an AAPS abstract reviewer since 2009.

Melinda Elise Kozminski, PharmD, BCACP, was selected in recognition of her paper, “Pharmacist Integration Into the Medical Home: Qualitative Analysis,” which was published in the March/April 2011 issue of JAPhA. Her coauthors are Rachelle Busby, PharmD, BCPS, Melissa Somma McGiveny, PharmD, FCCP, Patricia M. Klatt, PharmD, BCPS, Stephanie R. Hackett, PhD, and Joel H. Merenstein, MD. Kozminski is a clinical pharmacist at Gateway Health Plan in Pittsburgh. Her primary responsibility is implementing and carrying out the company’s MTM service. Immediately before her current position, she was a community practice resident at the University of Pittsburgh. During that time, she became convinced of the importance of including pharmacists within the medical home model. Kozminski’s professional interests center on both caring for patients’ medication-related needs and working to create opportunities for pharmacists to be more integrated into the health care team. Kozminski is currently a member of the Health Policy Committee of the Pennsylvania Pharmacists Association and strives to be involved with her state association to help create ways for pharmacists to provide direct patient care. She also serves as a clinical instructor at the University of Pittsburgh for student pharmacists completing their IPPE in community pharmacy. Kozminski received her PharmD from the University of Pittsburgh and recently became board certified in ambulatory care pharmacy. She is also a member of the Academy of Managed Care Pharmacy and the American College of Clinical Pharmacy.

Cameron A. Winfrey, PharmD, was selected in recognition of her paper, “Pharmacist-Initiated Peripheral Arterial Disease Screening Program in a Community Pharmacy Setting,” which was published in the May/June 2011 issue of JAPhA. Her co-authors are Sara Wortman, PharmD, Stacey Frede, PharmD, Natalie Kunze, PharmD, Wayne F. Conrad, PharmD, and Pamela C. Heaton, PhD.

Winfrey is a clinical pharmacist with Kroger Pharmacy in Cincinnati. Within her integrated practice site, she provides vaccinations, biometric screenings, MTM, and disease/lifestyle management programs to managed care clients, employees of self-insured employers, and traditional pharmacy customers. She is a participating provider in the APhA Foundation’s Project IMPACT Diabetes. Her site is one of five within the Cincinnati/Dayton division recognized by the American Diabetes Association for quality in diabetes self-management education. Winfrey also serves as a student preceptor and adjunct clinical instructor at the University of Cincinnati College of Pharmacy. She earned her B.A. degree in psychology from the University of Kentucky and doctor of pharmacy degree from the University of Cincinnati (UC). After graduation, she completed a PGY1 residency with an emphasis in community care at Kroger/UC. She is a member of APhA and the American Diabetes Association.

Student Awards, administered by the APhA Academy of Student Pharmacists
Joseph L. Fink III, BSPharm, JD, FAPhA, was selected for serving as a mentor for countless student pharmacists during their academic careers. As a former Chairman of the Student Section for the American Pharmaceutical Association, he paved the way for student leadership in professional organizations, and he credits Dr. Linwood Tice with encouraging his involvement in professional organizations in the early stages of his career. Now, as a faculty member, he uses his experiences to help develop future leaders. His role as a professor allows him to use his unique perspectives to inspire students to think beyond the classroom. Fink’s commitment to student pharmacists has earned him the respect and admiration of both students and his peers.

Fink is professor of pharmacy law and policy at the University of Kentucky (UK) College of Pharmacy. A native of Tyrone, PA, he started working with this father in the family pharmacy at age 11. He completed his professional education in pharmacy at the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science (PCPS) and then graduated from law school at Georgetown University. He was hired by Dean Tice to launch his academic career on the faculty at PCPS where he served for 8 years before moving to UK. Serving APhA in a number of capacities over the years, he chaired the committee for the latest revision of the APhA Code of Ethics for Pharmacists. He was founder and first president of the American Society for Pharmacy Law and, as a student pharmacist, was national president of the Student American Pharmaceutical Association, predecessor of the APhA-ASP. A highlight of his time as a student pharmacist was meeting his wife, Maureen Renie, a student pharmacist at OSU, at the 1969 APhA Annual Meeting in Montreal. They have two sons and four grandchildren. Fink is indebted to the numerous student pharmacists who have enriched his life over the years.
Gary E. DeLander, PhD, was selected for embodying all facets of an ideal advisor. He personally encourages students to focus on developing leadership and professional skills and provides guidance for student travel fundraising. With his open-door policy, he reaches out to students in leadership roles and within the chapter membership to provide encouragement in all aspects of project development and individual aspirations for involvement regionally and nationally. He is an excellent role model to students with his involvement at the state and national level through the Pharmacy Coalition. What makes DeLander unique is his advocacy for his vision. He believes every pharmacy student should participate in one community outreach event and develop through chapter membership into a leader for the profession.

DeLander currently serves as executive associate dean and chair of the Department of Pharmaceutical Sciences at Oregon State University College of Pharmacy. He completed his professional pharmacy education at the University of Colorado in 1977 and received his doctorate in pharmacology at the University of Minnesota in 1983. His scholarly interests have focused on mechanisms of pain and analgesia, drug actions of opioids, and more recently, models of pharmacy education. DeLander has served pharmacy practice and pharmacy education in a variety of roles. He has served as an advisor or liaison for several student professional organizations and as the Oregon State University APhA–ASP advisor since 1989. He has previously served as national president of the Rho Chi Society and chair of the AACP biological sciences section. He currently is a member of the editorial board of the American Journal of Pharmaceutical Education and serves on boards of directors for the Oregon State Pharmacist Association and Benton Hospice. Oregon pharmacists recognized him in 2007 with the Bowl of Hygeia Award for community service.
Hewitt W. “Ted” Matthews, RPh, PhD, was selected for his involvement with student pharmacist activities since the start of his career. As dean of the College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences at Mercer University, he supports all student projects and the professional growth of students through actively encouraging involvement. Dean Matthews attempts to meet all students through annual activities such as participating in the dean’s dinner at the APhA Annual Meeting, teaching a lecture in several courses, and distributing ice cream treats to students during the spring semester. From the beginning of his career as dean, he has worked with faculty members to update the curriculum that allows students to gain new knowledge and skills to aid them as practitioners. Through his dedication and promotion of student welfare, service, and leadership, Mercer’s student pharmacists have been recognized nationally for service, leadership, and professionalism.

Matthews is dean and professor of pharmaceutical sciences at the College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences as well as the University’s vice president for the health sciences. He earned a bachelor of science degree in chemistry from Clark College, a bachelor of science degree in pharmacy from Mercer University, and a master of science in pharmaceutical biochemistry and Ph.D. in biochemistry from the University of Wisconsin.

Matthews is a member of numerous professional organizations, including AMCP, AACP, AAPS, APhA, and ASHP. He has been honored with several awards for his achievements, including an Outstanding Leadership Award from the Magnolia State Pharmaceutical Association, Dean Facilitator within the Academic Leadership Fellows Program from AACP, Chauncey I. Cooper Award from the National Pharmaceutical Association, and American College of Apothecaries Dean’s Recognition Award for Outstanding Service to Community Pharmacy Practice.

The APhA Auxiliary/APhA Foundation Student Pharmacist Scholarship Program, inaugurated in 2003, encourages and recognizes high academic performance and community service, as well as active involvement in a school or college’s APhA Academy of Student Pharmacists (APhA-ASP) chapter. The scholarship program is underwritten, in part, with funds transferred to the APhA Foundation from the Irene Parks Student Loan Fund (that was administered by the APhA Auxiliary prior to its being disbanded in 2000).

Other underwriting comes from the following named scholarship funds:
- Mary Louise Andersen Student Pharmacist Scholarship Fund
- The Boyle Family Student Pharmacist Scholarship Fund

In 2010, nine $1,000 scholarships were awarded to student pharmacists. The APhA Foundation is pleased to see the growth of the program as well as the tremendous amount of interest that the students have shown for these scholarships. Unfortunately, the Foundation is unable to award every worthy applicant a scholarship due to limited funds.

You can make a difference in the lives of many students by establishing a named scholarship fund or contributing to an existing fund by contacting the APhA Foundation at (202) 429-7565.
